4. Coming to Nice

By Air:

The Nice Côte d'Azur Airport is France's second-largest international airport. It is located 15 minutes from the city centre. More than 50 airlines provide regular service to destinations throughout the world. An 80-minute flight links Nice to Paris, a connection that is offered 23 times a day.

<http://en.nice.aeroport.fr/>

Note that there are possibilities to rent a car at the airport:

<http://en.nice.aeroport.fr/Passengers/SHOPS-SERVICES/Car-rental/Car-Rental>

By Train:

The national railway system provides rapid and express trains (TGV, corail) connecting the French Riviera with all parts of France and all major cities in Europe. The TGV Méditerranée high-speed train links Paris to Nice in 5hrs 30 min.

The Nice train station is located in the heart of the city.

http://www.sncf.fr/en\_EN/flash

By Road:

Nice is connected to all the great European cities by a major motorway network. In particular, the A8 motorway, 'La Provençale', running from Aix-en-Provence to the West to the Italian border on the East.

There are five exits from the motorway to reach all parts of Nice:

- Exit n°50 : Promenade des Anglais
- Exit n°51 : Saint-Augustin / aéroport
- Exit n°52 : Saint-Isidore
- Exit n°54 : Nice nord
- Exit n°55 : Nice est

5. Accommodation

Nice has the second largest hotel park in France.

The reform of accommodation classification in France came into effect on 24th July 2012. Now, only the properties recently listed by Atout France may be classed "tourist hotels" and display their star-rating from 1* to 5*.

Below is a selection of hotels located near both venues of the SBCI and GI-REC joint Symposium. These hotels are also situated near the city center as well as to public transport.
